P Numb. 401

The Daily Courant.

Friday, July 30. 1703

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Auguſt 2.

Lublin, July 14.

THE Deputies of the Republick have receiv'd Orders to go with all convenient ſpeed to the King of Sweden in his Camp before Thorn, to remonſtrate to him, that the Republick expects he ſhould no longer delay to declare directly whether he will have War or Peace, and to return as ſoon as he has ſignified to them his final Reſolutions.

From the Harlem Courant, dated Auguſt 4.

Dantzick, July 20. There is Advice that the King of Sweden has detach'd a conſiderable part of his Army on ſome Enterprize, which 'tis generally believ'd is only to oppoſe the Lithuanians who are drawing towards Thorn. That City cannot hold out above a Fortnight or 3 Weeks longer, the Swedes having cut off their Water; ſo many of the Garriſon have been ſwept away by Sickneſs occaſion'd by the Stench of the dead Cattle, and for want of needful Proviſions that the Place muſt of courſe fall into the King of Sweden's hands in a ſhort time without a Blow. 'Tis ſaid the Swedes have intercepted a Letter from the Governour of Thorn to the King of Poland, by which they have diſcover'd ſome things of Importance.

Hamburg, July 31. They write from Riga, that the King of Sweden being diſpleas'd with the Reſolutions taken by the Diet at Lublin, had given order for making the neceſſary Diſpoſitions to attack Thorn.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated Auguſt 4.

Hamburg, July 27. Letters from Warſaw tell us, that there has been a ſmart Engagement not far from Plokko between a Party of Poles and Lithuanians of 3000 Men, and a Party of Swedes, in which the former were defeated. The King of Poland was to hold the Conſilium Poſt-Comitiale at Lublin on the 16th, and from thence was expected in a few days after at Warſaw. The Poſtpolite Ruſſenie have been order'd to return to their reſpective homes.

From the Harlem Courant, dated Auguſt 4.

Elbing, July 20. The Magiſtrates of this City have directly refus'd to comply with the King of Sweden's Demands; and are putting the Place into a State of Defence: We work hard on our Fortifications, and hope to make them ſufficiently ſtrong in a ſhort time. Letters from Livonia adviſe, that 7 or 8000 Muſcovites are moving towards Nerva, and ravage the Country about them in a terrible manner: One of their Detachments has taken a ſmall Fort not far from Iwanagrod.

Dantzick, July 21. General Steinbock has given out that he will ſtay here for a few Weeks, to receive the Contributions of the open Country that lies out of the Dependance of this City. Our Magiſtrates made him ſome Offers on his Demands; but he not being content therewith, 'tis like they will retract them, and in concluſion grant him nothing at all. The King of Sweden keeps the City of Thorn cloſely block'd up, and flatters himſelf that Place will be forc'd ſhortly to ſurrender to him, the Garriſon (as the Deſerters report) being in extream want of Proviſions already.

Hamburg, July 27. We have receiv'd Letters from Nerva by the way of Stockholm, which ſay, that a Reinforcement of Men, with a great quantity of Ammunitions and Proviſions and 50 Gunners were arriv'd there from Karelſcroon: That the Garriſon of that Place was augmented by theſe Reinforcements to 7000 Men regular Troops; and was ſufficiently provided for one Year; ſo that they were not in the leaſt apprehenſion of the Muſcovites, who had not yet paſs'd the River Luga. Letters from Wyburg of the 13th of this Month confirm a piece of News to which we gave little Credit before, viz. that General Cronhiort who commands the Swediſh Troops in Finland, went out of Wyburg on the 8th of June with 800 Men Foot aad Horſe towards Schanſterny, to get information of the Poſture of the Muſcovites in thoſe Quarters; on the 17th he found 1000 Muſcovites covering ſome Workmen who were building Barks, whom he charg'd and defeared, and burnt 10 of thoſe Barks and a Neighbouring Village.

A Letter that came by the laſt Poſt tells the following Story. A Woman that ſells little Balls to fetch Stains out of Cloaths, was directed by ſomebody to carry a parcel of them to a certain Perſon of Quality at the Hague who has lately given the World ſome occaſion to talk of him; being admitted to him, ſhe ſhew'd him what ſhe had brought, he told her he wanted none of them, and wonder'd what made her bring them to him; the Woman reply'd very innocently, that ſhe was very much diſappointed then, for the Perſon who directed her to him, aſſur'd her his Honour had occaſion for a Hundred or two of them. This Story (ſays the Letter) has been the Talk of the Hague for 2 or 3 Days, and paſſes for ſo keen a Jeſt, that it may ſerve perhaps as well as a Dutch Medal to perpetuate the Memory of the Miſcarriage (poſſibly the Misfortune rather) of the Gentleman on whom 'tis made.

Edinburg, July 21. This day 3 Clauſes were offer'd by 3 ſeveral Members to be added to the Act for Security of this Kingdom: The firſt was in ſubſtance, That the King or Queen of England, after Her Majeſty's deceaſe, ſhall not be capable of being elected to the Crown of Scotland, unleſs the ſole Diſpoſal of all Places and Penſions that were formerly uſed to be given by the King or Queen, be lodg'd in the Parliament of Scotland. The 2d was, That no Succeſſor to the Crown of England, ſhall be capable of being choſen to ſucceed to that of Scotland, until firſt England ſhall ſecure to Scotland a full Communication of Trade and Freedom of Navigation to all their Plantations. The Third was, That it ſhall be High Treaſon to Elect any that ſhall be Succeſſor to the Crown of England, to be King or Queen of Scotland, unleſs previous to the the ſaid Election, the Communication of Trade and Freedom of Navigation to all the Engliſh Plantations ſhall be ſecur'd, ſo as the ſame may never be alter'd or innovated without the conſent of the Parliament of Scotland. The Debate of theſe ſeveral Clauſes laſted till 10 at Night, and upon a Diviſion 'twas carried to delay coming to a Reſolution till next Meeting; and then the Houſe was adjourn'd to the 23d.

Moderation a Virtue: Or the Occaſional Conformiſt Juſtify'd from the Imputation of Hypocriſie; wherein is ſhewn the Antiquity, Catholick principles, and Advantage of Occaſional Conformity to the Church of England; and that Diſſenters from the Religion of the State, have been imploy'd in moſt Governments, under the ſeveral Heads following, I. That Occaſional Conformity is no new Thing, but is warranted in ſome caſes by the moſt ſacred and unconteſtable precedents. II. That the principles of the Occaſional Conformiſts are truly Chriſtian and Catholick. III. That the difference between the Church and Moderate Diſſenters is inconſiderable. IV. That the imploying of ſober Diſſenters in publik Truſts, is ſo far from being prejudicial to the Church of England, that it really ſtrengthens it. V. That Occaſional Conformity is an advantage to the Church, and weakens the Diſſenters. VI. That the late Bill againſt Occaſional Conformity would have been highly prejudicial to the Church of England. VII. That the Diſſenters from the Religion of the State have been imploy'd in moſt Governments. printed for A. Baldwin in Warwick-Lane.
